

TRAILBLAZER STAKEHOLDER FORUM: Engagement & Collaboration

Townsville, Wednesday 25 September 2024

The Resources Technology and Critical Minerals Trailblazer

James Cook University is partnering with the University of Queensland and Curtin University in the Resources Technology and Critical Minerals Trailblazer.

The Trailblazer is part of the Australian Government's Department of Education Trailblazer Universities Program.

The Program is designed to build new research capabilities and commercialisation opportunities in the resources and critical minerals industries across Australia.

The Trailblazer program drives engagement between universities and stakeholders from industry and education.

The program provides funding support for:

- Industry-led research projects related to critical minerals and resources technology
- Engagement with schools and the VET sector

The Forum

We invite you to join us at the inaugural JCU Trailblazer Forum.

The Forum aims to:

- Promote two-way communication between the university and external stakeholders
- Identify the aims and concerns of external stakeholders
- Explore avenues for future productive collaboration
